The Royal Society, the national academy of science of the UK and the Commonwealth, is at the cutting edge of top quality research, inspiring an interest in the joy, wonder and excitement of scientific discovery.

Our mission: to expand knowledge and further the role of science and engineering in making the world a better place.

The Royal Society’s strategic priorities are to:
• invest in future scientific leaders and in innovation,
• influence policymaking with the best scientific evidence,
• invigorate science and mathematics education,
• increase access to the best science internationally, and
• inspire an interest in the joy, wonder and excitement of scientific discovery.

Aims and Scope
Research papers.

Proc. R. Soc. B welcomes articles of outstanding quality in all aspects of biology. Currently, it is particularly strong in embryology in the widest sense, and in the fields of evolution, biodiversity, conservation and biogeography. It does not publish papers in health and disease, palaeontology and biogeosciences, as well as molecular biology, neuroscience and cognition; however, they may appear in special issues. Authors are encouraged to submit articles not only in these fields, but in all branches of biology. The criteria for selection are: work of outstanding merit, significance, scientific excellence, originality and potential interest to a wide spectrum of biologists.

Research papers.

The journal also publishes topical reviews in emerging areas of biological science that will be of interest to non-specialists. Topical reviews are commissioned but unselected submissions will be considered. Comment papers.

Comment papers. Short additions to, or criticisms of, papers already published in this journal will also be considered. At the discretion of the editors, the authors of the original paper may be allowed to write a reply or to select an invited commentator to reply. Comment papers should be short, interesting and conform to the rules of good manners.

Applications for publication are to be made on the Society’s Web site (www.rspb.royalsocietypublishing.org). For further information on the Society’s activities, please contact the following departments on the extension numbers listed by dialing +44 (0)20 7839 5561, or visit the Society’s Web site (www.rspb.org.uk).
